THE COMMUNITY ROOM,
BUILDING 800, WOODLAND
COMMUNITY COLLEGE
2300 EAST GIBSON RD.,
WOODLAND, CA

Gibson Rd./parking

PARTICIPANTS WILL EXAMINE segmental and suprasegmental aspects of non-native speakers' English pronunciation, practice the recognition of elements of prosody, such as stress, phrasing, rhythm, and intonation and will listen to speech samples to help analyze strengths and weaknesses (Participants are encouraged to bring a student speech sample). Ms. Chan will discuss best practices for providing positive feedback and correction to English learners. Participants should bring a mirror.

Marsha Chan teaches ESL at Mission College in Santa Clara, California. She is active in TESOL and CATESOL and is well-known for her engaging seminars at regional, state, and international conferences. Her expertise includes pronunciation, listening, speaking, grammar, vocabulary, distance education, and technology-enhanced language learning. Her participants cite her entertaining, excellent presentation and training skills and claim her as "one of our profession's treasures." Her publications include College Oral Communication 1, Phrase by Phrase Pronunciation in American English, and English for Child Care: Language Skills for Parents and Providers. www.sunburstmedia.com. Under author Michael Rost, she developed the pronunciation lessons for Levels 1–4 of Longman English Interactive, a four-level multimedia all-skills language program.
